- Project #1 invests in the communities' capacity to provide PEI services and support in a way that is sustainable.
- Project #2 uses a "friends are good medicine" campaign from an effective 1980 DMH demonstration project which was culturally adapted for different communities.
- Project #3 effectively used data to validate their efforts and drive their outcomes and goals.
- Project #4 will provide services through collaborative relationships between community/school based organizations, family resource centers, neighborhood collaborative, school resource centers and after school programs.
